Nova Southeastern University to Host the Council of Supply Chain Management Professionals' South Florida Roundtable Events

Fort Lauderdale, Florida USA (March 11, 2010)—The H. Wayne Huizenga School of Business and Entrepreneurship at Nova Southeastern University today hosted the Council of Supply Chain Management Professionals' (CSCMP) South Florida Roundtable at its state-of-the-art facility in Davie, Florida. CSCMP fosters education, advancement, and research of the supply chain management and logistics disciplines in South Florida.

"We are pleased to host the CSCMP events on our campus as CSCMP is an important and recognized global organization," said Dr. Mike Fields, Dean of the Huizenga School. "Our students and faculty enjoy participating in the events organized by this prestigious professional association," he added.

"We feel at home on the Nova campus," said Albert Saphir, President of CSCMP's South Florida Roundtable. "This is our second event at the Huizenga School, and it was a resounding success. I want to thank Dean Fields and his staff for their overwhelming hospitality and support of CSCMP," he concluded.
